

UNICEF Competency Framework

↳ Behaviours to guide
the way we work

OUR VALUES

Care

Respect

Integrity

Trust

Accountability

Foreword

As we work together to drive change for children and young people across the globe, we must hold ourselves, our colleagues and our organization to the highest standards.

UNICEF's Competency Framework establishes common standards of behaviour to guide the way we work and is based on our core values of Care, Respect, Integrity, Trust and Accountability.

Building from our previous competencies, this updated framework now consists of eight competencies and a set of behavioural indicators for each. All of our people will be assessed by the framework to varying degrees, depending on their job level. We will all be held accountable for our behaviours.

We aim to integrate the framework in everything we do, especially in how we attract, develop, assess, and retain our staff. This also includes recognizing and providing professional development opportunities for staff who embody our competencies and core values in their work.

I am excited to champion this framework and call on all UNICEF colleagues to do the same. Together, let us all demonstrate the highest standards of behaviour for the benefit of our workplace culture, our stakeholders and every child, everywhere.

Henrietta H. Fore
UNICEF Executive Director

“ Our framework has behavioural indicators for every competency, which makes it much more real, tangible and a foundation for discussions. ”

- Eva Mennel, Director, Division of Human Resources

Eight competency areas

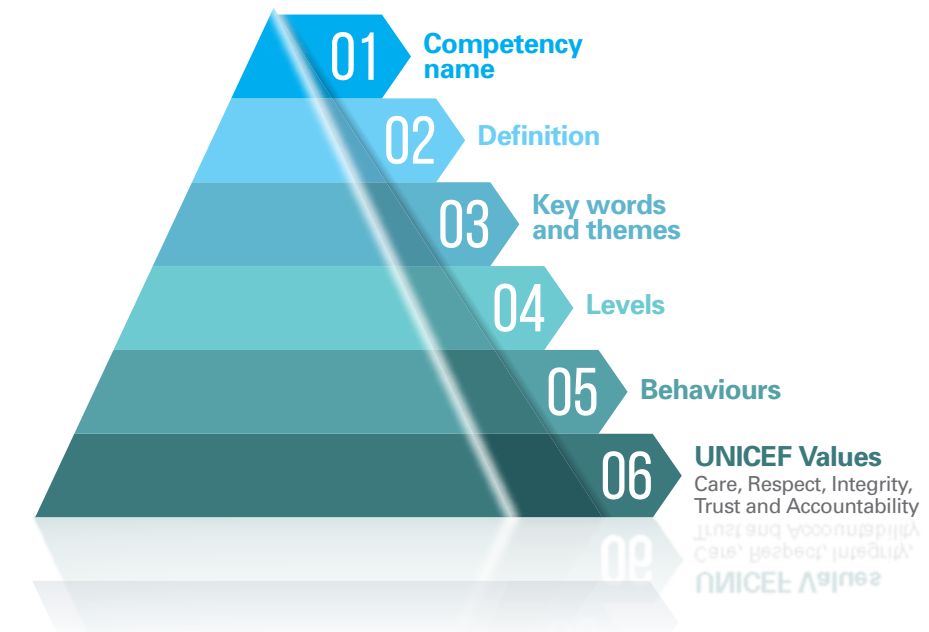

Our framework is made up of 8 competency areas.

1 to 7 are listed in alphabetical order and 8 is a dedicated people management competency specifically for managers and supervisors.

Values

UNICEF’s new values statement is a critical foundation in guiding our decisions and actions. When developing the competency framework, it was essential that it addressed all five values. The alignment of the values with the overall framework, with the demonstration of specific behaviours is presented in the diagram below.

Level descriptions*

Individual contributor:

Level 1: Colleagues without people management responsibility, who are accountable for their own individual performance and their contribution to the outputs of the team. Describes the core behaviours required of all colleagues across the organization, regardless of contract type, job role or grade level.

Team manager:

Level 2: Applies to all colleagues who have operational and functional responsibility for a team. Manages individual and team performance.

Manager of multiple teams:

Level 3: Applies to senior colleagues with responsibility and accountability for multiple teams.

The levels are cumulative and all colleagues, regardless of contract type, job role or grade level, are expected to demonstrate the core behaviours outlined in level 1. This means that:

- Team Managers at level 2 are expected to demonstrate the behaviours outlined in both levels 1 and 2 and
- Managers of Multiple Teams at level 3 are expected to demonstrate the behaviours outlined in all three levels.

*The competency area, Nurtures, Leads and Manages People, is an additional competency for managers and leaders with people management responsibilities. The level descriptions are on page 12.
